NEW YORK, November 3 .- Charles Windsor, for the last fourteen years Paying Teller of the Mercantile Bauk, disappeared on the 29th October. A reward of $5,000 for his arrest and $15,000 for the recovery of the money is offered.

New York, Nov. 3-A vessel has arrived here with the officers and crew of a number of vessels, captured by the new pirate Chickamauga, commanded by Licutenant Wilkinson, which left Wilmington, North Carolina, October 27th, with two other steamers. The Charleston Mercury says : " President Davis, who has been opposed to making any concessions whatever to the enemy, has been finalled prevailed upon to grant an armistice to the North, provided it is solicited in a respectful manner. This proposed armistice, if granted, raises the blockade by land and sen, which will enable our people to lay in a large amount of supplies." THE ATLANTIC CABLE .- Recent advices from England state that the ocean cable is being rapidly manulactured, and as last as made is coiled up on board the Great Eastern under water. It is supposed that the long exposure of the first cable to the sun and air was the true cause of its failure. The present precaution is adopted to prevent the recurrence of

FROM NORTH CAROLINA-New York, Nov. 2 .- Dr. Ross, a clergyman in North Carolina, says the entire State of North Carolina, as well as Georgia, is alive with rebel deserters, in most cases armed and organized and abundantly able to protect themselves. In the western part of the State they reign supreme. They make repeated raids on wealthy planters and rebel depots for supplies, and give protection to runaway slaves, who are also armed. The authorities have given up all hope of forcing them back into the ranks, and have been repulsed in all efforts to this end. Jeff. Davis said, when in Releigh, that the daserters of the Confederate army outnumbered the Confederate soldiers in the field.

THE BRIG VISION .- This miniature brig, which left New York for Europe on the 20th of June, has not been heard from since July 20th, when she was spoken about midway across the Atlantic, on her way to Europe. As the Vision is of but about a dozen tons burthen, fears for her safety are naturally entertained, though the more sanguine feel no apprehension on her account. It is certainly time she was

PRESIDENTIAL SALARY .- The very absurd lie that President Lincoln receives his salary in gold is effectively refuted by E. L. Chittenden of Vermont, the late Register of the Treasury, who had charge of all payments of that kind. Mr. Lincoln and all his Cabinet receive the ordinary greenbacks, just like ordinary men in ordinary business, and the regular income tax is regularly deducted from Mr. Lincoln's salary. RICHMOND .- A lady, for several years resident in Richmond, lately arrived in Philadelphia, paid $3,-000 in rebel money to get there. The rebel authorities have advised all females and non-combatants to leave Richmond as soon as possible. They do not believe Richmond can be taken by assault, but tear that Grant will succeed in starving them into a surrender by cutting the railroads. They freely admit that the loss of Richmond is the end of the rebellion, but they are determined to hold out to the last. Every male is in the army and prices are enormously

The spot in our take can be pointed out to you where a young Lieutenant of the United States army was well nigh drowned. He went down, it was supposed, for the last time, when assistance reached him. He was rescued, and after much difficulty restored to consciousness. That young Lieutenant is now the President of the insurgent 'Confederacy'-Jefferson Davis." There is an old proverb which says, "He who is born to be hanged will never be drowned."

FROM THE POTOMAC ARMY .- NEW YORK, Nov. 2. -The Tribune's correspondent on the left of the Army of the Potomac, under date of October 30th, says: The new angle of a mile and a half south and west, acquired on our left by the recent strategic demonstration is being strongly fortified. I understand that the "Army Line Railroad" is to be immediately pushed out to the left two or three miles beyond its present terminus. The way this important extension of our fortified line came to be so easily made was by the enemy weakening their line of batthe at this point to intercept what they took to be a tank movement around their extreme right. While they were massing against the Second and Fifth Corps on the extreme left, the Ninth Corps shoved in at this point and took the line of their works, which was reversed, and now forms our new left angle. Probably not during the war has so important an extension of a fortified line been made with so little fighting. It is true that there was considerable marching and countermarching in this operation. This, like other movements recently, demonstrated the growing weakness of the rebel army.

The people of Australia, reduced to despeir by the persistence of the English Government in forcing transports and convicted felons upon them, propose to turn the tables, and a movement is how on foot to send back a cargo of the worst criminals to the mother country, just to see how the English would like the treatment she extends to that colony.

An ingenious method for throwing a rope to a ship in distress has been imagined by M. Bertinelli, of Turin. It is well known that this is generally done by means of iron projectiles, which sink below the water if the rope they carry be too short. M. Bertinelli's projectile is made of wood, which, though heavy enough to be shot to a great distance, is sufficiently light to float on the water, thus giving the crew in danger an opportunity of reaching it by some means or other if it should happen to fall short.

RED Snow .-- In the high regions of the California Alps the red snow known in the European Alps and the Arctic zone is found. It is not snow, but globules intensely red in color, either animal or vegetable, but which is not known. We presume, however, they are vegetable, for animals cannot draw their substances directly from minerals, but from moist plants or other animals; and none such appear in the red snow. These curious globules are found only in perpetual snow and in places where the surface thaws. They are so abundant as to frequently give a red tinge to a large mass of snow.

CAPTURE OF PLYMOUTH, N. C .- NEW YORK, NOV. 7.-Richmond papers of November 4th, have the following concerning the sinking of the Albermarie, and the capture of Plymouth : The Richmond Dispatch says : The capture of Plymouth, North Carolina, by the enemy, is explained by later accounts. A lack of sufficient watchfulness on the part of our troops seems to have been the prime cause of the loss of the town. It seems that on Tuesday night a party of eighteen men, belonging to the blocksding fleet in Albermarle Sound, eight or ten miles from Plymouth, took a small torpedo boat and started for Plymouth. On the way they found a small boat containing six of our men, on the river, anchored there as a picket guard. But all of them being asleep, they were taken prisoners; and then proceeding to Plymouth they found the Albermarle at her wharf, and running the torpedo boat under her amidships, they blew her up, causing damage from which she soon sunk. Infantry was stationed on the wharf, who fired on the assailing party, and, after the Aibermarle sunk, captured the whole of them. There was no force of the enemy near Plymouth, with the exception of five or six gunboats in the Sound, but the loss of the Albermurle opened the Roanoke to them, and hence the fall of the town. Captain Roberts, it is stated, commanded the Albermarle. It is understood that there were no lives lost on the ram. There were very few men on board at the time of the explosion of the torpedo.

Where is Andersonville ?- Andersonville is in the southwestern part of the State of Georgia, and is nearly direct south of Atlanta, from which it is distant a little over one hundred miles. It is some ten miles north of Americus where the prison for our captives was located for some time, and from which to Anderson ville some of them were removed. It is on one of the borders of the Flint river, which is a confluent of the Apalachicola, and is also on the line of railroad running in a southerly direction from Macon. It can be seen on any good map, under the designation of Andersonville. It is marked "Anderson" on the map. General Sherman is moving a portion of his army to Fort Valley-the junction of the western and southern Georgia railroads, where he will recapture our 30,000 prisoners, we hope, before they are dead from starvation.

The Atlantic cable, which is to be laid next summer between England and America, was recently tested to try its is strength and ductility. A given length was taken, suspended, and gradually weighted until it broke, the elongation succeeding each additional weighting being duly registered. The cable selected bore the weight of three-fifth tons. The case, the spiral wires involving it, the insulating body, the jute varn, and each separate strand of the cable were similarly tested. It was found from those experiments that the more the fibres of wire were brought into a state of tension, the greater became its strength, and that as an insulator gotta percha, although not so perfect as India rubber, is far more durable, and that the cable as now manufactured will be able to be bear a strain four times its own weight when laid at the bottom of the Atlantic.

The London Times thinks Sherman has shown generalship superior to Grant in this summer's campaign. It says: It is by contrasting Sherman's operations with those of Grant that the generalship of the former commander will be shown to the greatest advantage Grant ventured upon all the enterprises which Sherman circumspectly declined. He threw himself headlong upon his adversary's lines, and never attempted to turn a position until he had lost an army in assaulting it. His first instinct was to fight; it was only as a last resource that he manœuvred. Just at this moment he is trying an operation very similar in appearance to that of Sherman below Atlanta. He has got below Richmond, and has seized a portion of the railroad which runs into Richmond through Petersburg.

THE COTTON MANUFACTURE.-In England it is calculated that, when the cotton manufacture is thriving, there are thirty millions of spindles constantly employed in spinning lotton alone, so that if every man woman and child in the three kingdoms were to devote twelve hours a day to this occupation, they could not effect as much; and it would require another population of nearly equal extent to prepare the cotton for the spindles, and a very large number of persons to supply the place of 800,000 power-looms that are employed to weave it, and to supplant all the mechanical appliances that finish it and fit it for the market. All this is required for cotton; but when we add to this the amount of power employed in spinning and weaving flax and wool, and all the different classes of fibers which we have enlisted in our service, the power employed in cotton alone sinks a mere fraction.

LEE'S PRESENT MODE OF OBTAINING SUPPLIES -A correspondent of the New York Tribune learns through a refugee from Richmond that the rebels, in wagoning supplies for their army around the break in the Weldon railroad, are compelled to use negroes as a substitute for horses, owing to the great scarcity | The settled conviction of scientific writers is that of the latter. Sixteen are assigned to each wagon, and they draw a load equal to that drawn by four horses. They are geared in the following manner : Two men, called guides, are placed on the wagon tongue, near the end, to steer and to act as brakesmen when descending a hill. To the butt of the tongue is attached a rope, running through a ring to the end, and extending about eight yards beyond it. Strong bars of wood are fastened across the rope, about a yard apart, and men in pairs are placed, one on each side of the rope, to push against the bars. Each wagon is in charge of a conductor, who, though white, is not allowed to ride. It is said the negroes perform their work quite cheerfully. They are allowed about a pint of corn whiskey per day, high.

The Chicago Journal says: "Rev. Dr. Evarts related in a sermon, recently, the following incident:

LONGING POR PEACE .- As minutes of anguish seem longer than hours of pleasure, so the interval of time, that stretches itself between the present and the blissful days all bright and beautiful from the sweet and potent influences of peace appears thrice the period it really is. How often have those sufferers by the dreadful conflict grouned forth the inquiry, how much longer will the war continue? Lifting their burdened hearts to heaven, they exclaim, " How long, O Lord ! how long?" When will the wrath of God cease to burn with a fierce flame? Will the terrible contest go on till the manhood of Southland has perished from the land? Till every wife is widowed, every child is orphaned, and there is a corpse in every

The heir apparent of Russia, the future master of a realm of more than seven millions of square miles -an empire comprising one-seventh of the territorial part of the globe, and about one twenty-sixth part of its empire surface -is in want of a wife, and cannot find one. Grand Duke Nicholas, heir apparent of all the Russias, twenty-one years old, tall, good looking, in splendid uniform, speaking five languages, and with all the accomplishments, is willing to wed, yet cannot get a wife. Only five candidates have presented themselves, and of these he doesn't like three of them, and his father doesn't like the other two. So here he is, poor fellow, and can't get a wife; and cold weather is coming.

FOREIGNERS DRIVEN INTO THE REBEL ARMY -An nteresting case is now before a Contederate court at Richmond. R. D. Ogden, an English actor, was seized as a conscript a few months ago and sent to camp, although he had his consular certificate, showing that he was a British subject. He seeks to be released. Mr. P. H. Aylett, in behalf of the War Department, made a very long argument, maintaining that all domiciled foreigners are really on the same footing in respect to military service as the resident inhabitants. Of course, if that opinion is maintained by the court, the foreigners in the South are in a very interesting plight. And Aylett in his argument mentioned one fact respecting the foreigners in the Southern army, to which we wish to direct special attention. He said that if Ogden was released, twenty thousand men who had been swept into the army by the conscript law, would also have to be released. That number of men who believe they have a right, as foreigners, to exemption, are to-day fighting for them. The British Government may be interested in Mr. Aylett's statement.

A BOY CARRIED TO SEA BY A CUTTLE FISH -A late letter from Cuba contains an account of the carrying off of a boy, eight years old, by a cuttle-fish, which is about as horrid an affair as we have read of for some time. It seems that several children were playing near the shore, and coming upon the cuttle-fish, a few rods from the water, began to throw sticks and stones at it. The hsh at once retreated towards the water, the children following in great glee, and raining missiles up the creature, the like of which they had never before seen. As soon as the cuttle fish had got to the water's edge it threw one of its long arms upon the arm of the boy nearest to it, and to his and his playfellow's horror, began to drag him into the sea. The poor child struggled to get loose, and screamed agonizingly, and some of the larger boys rushed to his aid, but too late. His body was almost instantly dragged out of sight beneath the foam; and from the well-known voracity of the fish it was of course understood that the wretched child was speedily devoured.

MILITARY RANK .- The following is the order in which military rank runs: Ensign or Cornet, Lieutenant, Captain, Major, Lieutenant-Colonel, Brigadier General, Major-General, Lieutenant-General General, Field-Marshal or Marshal, and Captain-General. A Generalissimo is the commander-in-chief. the highest officer of all. Alexander was Generalissimo of the Greeks in their final contest with Persia. Napoleon was Generalissimo of the forces that he took into Russia, in 1812; and he also commanded all the other French forces then in the field, as in Spain, Italy, and other countries. If President Lincoln were to take the field and take command of the American forces, he would be our Generalissimo. As it is, we have no higher officer in active service than Lieutenant-General. A Captain-General is commander-in-chief, as Governor Andrew is Captain-General of the militia of Massachusetts. Field-Marshal is a German title, and is used in all European countries but France, the French title being Marshal

A WEATHEROMETER .- A new invention, calculated to supplant the barometer, is called the aelloscope. Aelloscopy is that branch of meteorology which is concerned with storms, and might be called stormforeseeing or storm-prognosticology, and this instrument is called an aelloscope, because it is so con-structed that it never fails to give timely warning of the approach of a storm.

The harp is soon to be introduced into the Church of England choirs. This most historical of instruments is finding many advocates, and the Court Journal says: "Several prelates of authority bave | For LAHAINA. considered the point involved most favorably, and musicians are as one as to the solemn and beautiful effect it will have in occasional accompaniment."

METEORIC DISPLAYS .- Professor Silliman has the following published in the San Francisco papers : "Astronomers anticipate a recurrence this year of the November meteoric shower of 1833; the mornings from the 11th to the 15th are all likely to show an unusual number of meteors, specially the 12th and the 14th. The best time of observation is from half past one o'clock, A. M., onward. The radiant point is the constellation Leo. Observers in California, Nevada, and the Pacific coast generally, are requested to report their observations to Professor Silliman, Jr., San Francisco, for the American Jour. nal of Science, where they will be published for the good of science." There are many, no doubt, who still remember the grand meteoric displays on the 13th November, 1833. and such can appreciate the magnificence of these heavenly wonders. Though occurring generally once in thirty-two years, or thereabouts, history fails to record any disaster occasioned by these phenomena. they are quite as harmless as the wind that blows.

These periodic showers have been remarked for the last nine hundred and sixty years, viz : in October, 902; October 19, 1202; October 21, 1306, (O.S.) Within the last hundred years these showers of " falling stars " have occurred generally between the 10th and 15th of November. On the night of November 12-13, 1831, '82, and '83, these exhibitions were noticed. But that of the latter date was the most remarkable for the brilliancy of the display, the length of time during which it lasted-from midnight until daylight-and for the countless numbers of small and large bodies, which came and went streaming through space, flashing and glowing along from the point g mma of the constellation Leonis first visible must have been more than two thousand miles from the earth. Since then their appearance has been noticed nearly year, which has convinced astronomers that a body of nebulous matter revolves regularly round the sun in an elliptical orbit, the time of these exhibitions being at the aphelion of the body, that is, the time when the body is fartbest from the sun, and that in passing through the earth's orbit, portions of the nebulous matter become visible to man. The astronomer Olbers thought that the real period of return of these showers was thirtyfour years, from the fact that that number of years intervened between the brilliant exhibition of 1799 and the still more grand one of 1883, and the next will occur in 1867. Others confidently look for it this year. Sac. Bee.
